ITEMS OF INTEREST.

—The following is said to be a sure cure for corns: One teaspoonful of tar, one of coarse brown sugar, and one of saltpeter. The whole to be warmed together. Spread it on kid leather the size of the corns, and in two days they will be drawn out.

—It is stated that on the day of Baron James de Rothschild's funeral, his widow gave orders that every beggar who came to the door should receive a gold piece of twenty francs, and that in pursuance of this order no less than sixty thousand dollars was given away in the course of the day.

In manner easy, and even cordial, Mr. Morton succeeds in repelling the expectation of Hoosier loudness, as well as of grafting on to a New England alertness that smooth something which makes a New Yorker the equal of a Yankee in quickness without any of his angles.

—The English books exported from Great Britain in 1867 weighed 49 814 hundred weight, and were valued at $3 052,690. The United States took $801,555 worth; Australia, $569 080; Egypt $325,635; British North America, $263 365; British India, $218 195; France, $218,675; Italy, $109 095; South Africa, $104,325; Hamburg, $65,800; West Indies and British Guiana, $59,305; and Holland, $53,550. —The Houston Telegraph remarks that in ten years from this time the Pacific Railroad will be completed, branch roads will be running from it in every direction, the New Orleans and Texas Railroad will be completed, and daily trains running to and from the Crescent City; the Central Railroad will have reached its destination, and all the other roads now projected will be in running order; the Ship Channel will be completed, and vessels from all the great ports lying at anchor at the city of Houston, and Houston will be a city of fifty thousand inhabitants. Ten years hence the teeming millions of Texas will be the happiest, most prosperous people on this continent.

—The New York Evening Post publishes the following extract from a private letter, written by a well-known South Carolina loyalist and Republican to a gentleman in that city: "Our prospects in South Carolina, and I think all over the South, are now very encouraging, both politically and materially. Lawlessness has ceased almost as if by magic since the elections, and everybody seems to adopt the motto of Grant, 'Let us have peace.' Good feeling seems rapidly returning between the two parties, and a prominent Republican is treated different from what he was only a month ago. The financial prospects of the State have improved wonderfully within the last two or three weeks."

—The Himalaya mountains are the subject of a course of lectures now being delivered in New York by Prof. Robert Von Schlagintwelt, who, with his brothers, has thoroughly explored these regions. The approach to the Himalayas lies over a marshy tract, covered with a wilderness of luxuriant vegetation, and the haunt of ferocious wild beasts. The miasmatic exhalations are fatal to strangers, and the fever-smitten inhabitants are obliged to live in huts built several feet above the ground. After this region (called Tarai) is passed, the traveler suddenly stands before the Himalayas. This chain of mountains rises to an average hight of 16 000 to 18,000 feet, though forty five of the peaks are over 23 000 feet in altitude. The highest point at which a continuously inhabited village is to be found is 11,746 feet above the level of the sea.

—We were surprised a few days since, says the New York Evening Mail, to see that Mme. Matilda Heron was to deliver the opening address at Jarrett and Palmer's new Tammany Concert Hall. It did not seem possible that one of the stars of the legitimate drama would associate her name in any way with this colossal lager beer ballet saloon in Fourteenth street. If the few dramatic artists we have of unsullied reputation consent to lend the influence of their names to such places of dissipation as concert saloons, then we have but little hope of retaining even the shadow of dignity upon the stage. It would be a sorry sight to see any artist before the audience of a low saloon seeking to render fashionable the vice of intemperance. We are glad to be able to positively contradict the report that Madame Matilda Heron will deliver an address upon the platform of the great Tammany Hall song and dance house.

—It is estimated that there are 80,500 boilers in the United States, representing a power of over 3,000,000 horses, or of 17,000,000 men. These 69,500 boilers are distributed as follows: Locomotive, 9000; steamboat, 10,500; stationary, 50,000. At a recent meeting of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a lecturer asserted that, according to experiments made by himself, all boiler explosions, except in the few cases which burst in the weakest place, are caused by the unequal expansion of the metal. It was stated that the greatest number of boiler explosions, especially on locomotives, occur in this country between the first of September and the first of January, in the interval between summer and the time when the engineer supplies feed water heated by his waste steam, the cold feed water at the above season causing unequal expansion of the metal. In order to prevent this, a device has been invented by which water is taken from the bottom of the boiler, and by means of an automatic apparatus, furnished to the top. In this way feed water of the temperature of the steam is constantly supplied to the boiler, and unequal expansion is prevented.

A BAD CASE OF GRECIAN BEND.

How the thing was Reduced in Size.

The Hamilton (Canada) Spectator tells the following story, which should be a warning to the smugglers, and Grecian benders particulary:

The Grecian bend was put to a novel use on the Buffalo and Lake Huron Railway a few days since. In one of the first class cars sat a handsome young lady, dressed in the height of fashion, who appeared to be suffering under a rather painful attack of the Grecian bend. As is usual on the train's arrival on the American side, the baggage of the passengers was examined by the United States custom officers. "Have you any baggage, Miss?" inquired the officer of the aforesaid young lady. "Nothing ex. Pears and Cherries, an extra fine Well cept this," replied she, producing a small valise. The officer examined and returned it, at the same time scanning the young lady in a manner that almost amounted to rudeness. "Will you follow me to the custom office, Miss?" said the official. The corners of his mouth were almost drawn into a smile, and a mischievous twinkle was perceptible in his eyes as he lead the way to the searching room. Arrived there, the lady's face, which had previously been of a marble whiteness, assumed a crimson hue. "What is here, madam?" said the officer, passing his hand over the back of her dress. "That is my 'Grecian bend,'" replied she, meekly casting down her eyes; "I did not know there was any duty to pay on it." "There is no duty to pay on it, but we must examine it," replied the obstinate officer. A female searcher was procured, and after strong protests on the part of the young lady, the mystery of the "Grecian bend," alias the "Montreal wriggle," was unravelled, and found to contain twelve yards of black silk velvet, six pair of French kid gloves, forty yards of rich lace, four white ostrich feathers, and a bottle of Gilbert's magic restorer. The United States customs are now convinced of the reason why the Grecian bend has had such a rage, and they intend to give particular attention to any cases of this infectious disease which may come under their notice for the future. All cases of Grecian bend will be immediately put under quarantine on their arrival across the border.

RUNAWAY MARRIAGES.

Heavy on the Gretna Green Style.

From the N. Y. Evening Mail.]

We think that the man who will beguile a young girl into a runaway and secret marriage ought to be taken to the Delaware pillory and whipping-post, and a goodly round of lashes applied to his bare back. And we further assert that any minister of the Gospel who will assist at such a runaway and secret ceremony ought to be excommunicated from the church and society, and should be shut up in the county jail. The fact is this "runaway match" business has been too shamefully common of late, and there is need of the strong hand of law to put a stop to it. In nine cases out of ten these matches prove wretchedly disastrous, and as such deserve the condemnation of all who have any care for the good of society. Shame say we on the man who will run away with a girl to make her his wife, and shame, thrice shame, on the minister who will lend his hand in such business.

RUSSIA.

Conspiracy of the Students of Moscow and Kieff.

From the N. Y. World.]

Russia is beginning to partake of the uneasy feeling which the Baudin prosecutions betokened for France, and the whole course of recent legislation has evinced in England. The imperial police report the discovery of a conspiracy among the undergraduates at the universities of Moscow and Kieff, of which the object was to introduce into Russian life some features of philosophic socialism of which the establishment was obviously incompatible with the safety of the throne of the Czar. The conspiracy was at least sufficiently extensive to have ramified into an institution other than the one in which it germinated, and its importance is enhanced by collating it with the further fact that, in spite of the vigilance of the custom-house, large editions of pamphlets, written by republicans Russians in exile, have found their way into the hands of Russian readers, and that still other editions have been seized in transit and destroyed. A third university, that of Vilna, has been made obnoxious by some of its undergraduates, who gathered at a great banquet and drank with clamor a seditious toast "to the speedy enfranchisement of the Slavonic peoples." Just how far this feeling has spread, who can tell; but the fact that it exists among boys in college will not belittle its importance with those who remember 1848.

SUNDAY TRAINS.

Are Sunday Trains on Railroads Profitable.

From the Philadelphia Age.]

The question whether Sunday trains on railroads pay, has been mooted for some time in this country, and is now likely to be solved. A committee of gentlemen in New York lately sent circulars of inquiry to one hundred and twenty-four railroad companies throughout the United States, and from them learn that sixty-five companies run no trains of any kind on Sunday, and that fifty-nine companies run one hundred and seventy-seven passenger and forty-two freight trains. One railroad officer estimates that thirty thousand men are employed in Sunday railroad work in the country. The question whether Sunday railroad trains are profitable was answered by sixteen companies in the affirmative, by thirty-eight in the negative, and unanswered by the others. The replies justify the conclusion that Sunday trains are either directly or indirectly without profit to the company running them, especially if the wear and tear of men and material be taken into account. Among the well-known railroad men who support this view are—President E. B. Phillips, of the Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana road, who says: "We are satisfied that it is for the interest of the company to allow our employees the rest of the Sabbath. It is our intention to reduce our Sunday services to the lowest possible amount;" and Superintendent Card, of the Pittsburg, Cincinnati and St. Louis Railway, who declares that in his opinion "Sunday trains and Sunday work of all kinds should be discouraged, and men engaged six days of the week need Sunday for rest." The Boston and Providence Railroad replies that "secular work on Sunday is profitable for nobody, corporations or individuals;" while other companies confirm these statements. He believes it is the desire of all companies to reduce Sunday trains to the smallest number compatible with the positive requirements of mail carriage and passenger travel.

GRATITUDE.

Devotion and Love of Former Slaves.

From the N. Y. Evening Mail, 16th.]

This evening there will be a fashionable wedding at Trinity Chapel. The bride is the daughter of a well known Southern lady, a resident of Mobile, who, before and during the war, owned a great many slaves. During all the troubles of the war her servants were constant and devoted, and only left her when, three months after freedom was given to them, she came to this city to reside. The daughter of this lady will to night marry a gentleman from Georgia. But, instead of appearing at the altar in a costly satin dress and French imported veil, she will wear a bridal trousseau made and presented to her by her old negro nurse! The dress is of the finest muslin, and has been most elaborately made. When this old negress heard of the approaching marriage, she bought from her own earnings the finest muslin she could find in the South, and with her own hands made up the bridal dress. She also procured the veil, and twined the wreaths of orange flowers. Each one of the old servants contributed some article of clothing, or a present, and then with many good wishes they packed them in a trunk and sent them North. Their arrival in the city was an unexpected surprise. The bride-elect at once determined to be married in this neat and beautiful dress, and the more costly trousseau was laid aside. Thus, although years have separated mistress and servants, and although hundreds of miles intervene, yet the black woman of the South does not forget the kindness of her former mistress, now a Northern lady.

DEAD SEA OF MONO.

A Remarkable Body of Water in the Great Basin.

From the Austin Reveille.]

There are many things in the Great Basin, or along its rim, which excite the interest of travelers. A correspondent asks us to tell him whether Mono Lake is actually the "dead sea" it is represented to be. I am told that its bitter waters are fatal to all living things. If you can, will you please say something about that singular body of water?

We gather from the "Report on the Mineral Resources of the States and Territories west of the Rocky Mountains," that Mono Lake lies ten miles southwest of the dividing line between California and Nevada, and is about fourteen miles long and nine wide. It has never been sounded, but a trial said to have been made with a line of three hundred feet, failed to reach bottom. By chemical analysis a gallon of the water, weighing eight pounds, was found to contain 1200 grains of solid matter, consisting principally of chloride of sodium, carbonate of soda, sulphate of soda, borax and silica. These substances render the water so acrid and nauseating that it is unfit for drinking or even bathing. Leather immersed in it is soon destroyed by its corrosive properties, and no animal—not even a fish or a frog—can exist in the water for more than a short time. The only thing able to live within or upon the waters of this lake is a species of fly, which springs from larvæ bred in its bosom, and after an ephemeral life dies, and collecting on the surface, is drifted to the shore, where the remains collect in vast quantities, and are fed upon by the ducks or gathered by the Indians, with whom they are a staple article of food. Nestling under the eastern wash-shed of the Sierra, Mono Lake receives several considerable tributaries; and, although destitute of any outlet, such is the aridity of the atmosphere that it is always kept at nearly a uniform level by the process of evaporation. So dense and sluggish is the water rendered through supersaturation with various salts and other foreign matters, that only the strongest winds raise a ripple on its surface. As the Sierra in this neighborhood reaches nearly its greatest altitude, the scenery about Mono Lake is varied and majestic, some parts of it being at the same time marked by a most cheerless and desolate aspect. The bitter and fatal waters of this lake render it literally a dead sea, and its surroundings—wild, gloomy and foreboding—are suggestive of sterility and death. The decomposing action of the water is known by its effect upon the bodies of a company of Indians, twenty or thirty in number, who, while seeking to escape from their white pursuers, took refuge in the lake, where they were shot by their enemies, who left them in the water. In the course of a few weeks not a vestige of their bodies was to be seen, even the bones having been decomposed by this powerful solvent. Mineral curiosities abound in the neighborhood of Mono Lake, among which are numberless depositions in the shape of tiny pine trees.

THE "MOLLY MAGUIRES"

They Signalize their Advent in the United States by Murder.

They Kill a Man at his Own Treshold.

A few days ago we published a dispatch briefly alluding to the murder of Mr. Douglas Love, by unknown persons, at the works of the Central Mining Company, in Allegheny county, Md., on the night of the 6th inst. Mr. Love was a "boss miner," had in his hands the employment of two or three hundred men, by whom, it is said, he was greatly respected and beloved for his uprightness and kindness. He had often received anonymous threatening notes, supposed to come from persons to whom he had refused employment, but never paid any attention to them. A correspondent of the Baltimore American thus graphically describes the circumstances of the murder:

"It was about seven o'clock when, as Mr. Love and his family were enjoying the calm repose of Sabbath eve, a knock came to the back door of their dwelling. The nephew of Mr. Love, a boy of about fifteen years of age, went to the door, and in the gloom saw the outlines of two large men, one of whom asked to see his uncle. The lad entered the room, and informed his uncle that two men wanted to see him. He told the boy to tell them to come in, but they replied to this invitation that they were in a great hurry, as they were going to Fretsburg, and would detain Mr. Love but for a moment if he would come to the door. Thus urged, Mr. Love rose from his seat, left the embraces of his little children, who were clustered around his knees, and went to meet his cruel death. As he reached the door the men exclaimed, 'You're the man we want,' and both fired their pistols at him simultaneously and fled. One ball took effect in the left breast of the unhappy man, severing one of the larger arteries of the heart. He uttered no exclamation, but strange to say, retained sufficient vitality to walk back to his sitting-room, open a drawer, and take therefrom a large pistol, with which he returned toward the door, as if to meet his assailants. His wife, however, in her alarm, had rushed to the door and closed it. Mr. Love then returned to the room and sunk down upon a couch, and addressing his wife, gasped out, "Margaret, I am gone," and at the same moment, grasping the hand of one of his little children, died almost immediately. The sound of the fire-arms drew together, in a few moments, quite a crowd from the adjacent neighborhood, and it is supposed the murderers themselves must have mingled in the crowd, as no one was seen running away from the scene of the murder."

The correspondent offers the following as one explanation of the cause of this most atrocious murder:

"There is a theory generally entertained in this community as to this murder, which may or may not be correct, but nevertheless it may be as well to state it briefly. There is known to exist among a certain portion of the miners in this region a secret society called the 'Molly Maguires,' one of whose laws, it is said, fully recognizes the atrocious crime of assassination! If a man renders himself obnoxious to this clan, he receives a 'warning,' and if he persists the question of his life or death is put to a vote, thus: 'Shall —— live?' If the vote be "No," lots are drawn, and out of the whole number drawing, two will receive the fatal lot, who, by the terms of their oath of membership, are sworn to keep the fact secret from their fellow-members, and to proceed to accomplish the foul deed speedily, or themselves incur the same fate! Infinitely horrible as the idea of such an organization may seem to be, it is nevertheless confidently believed by many that it was by such a mode as this that the assassination of Douglas Love was accomplished. It is believed that the murderers belonged to other mines than the one over which the victim presided. The fact that many men supposed to have belonged to this society had from time to time failed, for some reason or other, to obtain employment from Love, is supposed to have drawn down upon him the vengeance of the murderous clan."

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

New Way of Keeping Fish, Meat and Poultry Fresh.

A gentleman in Gloucester, Mass., has received letters patent for an article which, if it does all that is claimed for it, is destined to produce an entire revolution in the fishing and provision business. The article in question is soluble in water, something similar to salt, and has the peculiar property of keeping fish, meat, poultry, etc., perfectly fresh for any length of time. It is almost entirely devoid of smell or taste, and scientific men who have examined the article pronounce it a success and wonder why some one did not discover its remarkable properties before. The Gloucester Advertiser says: "We have seen cod which have been in this solution seven weeks, and the flesh was as hard and the general appearance of the fish equally as fresh and good as if it had just been taken from the water. A porgie which had been in soak ten weeks, and a haddock four weeks, presented the same remarkable appearance. The fish were cut in our presence, and the flesh was as solid and as good as any fresh fish that may be found in the market. If this discovery should prove as expected, salt and ice, which are large items of expense in preserving provisions, will be superseded, and poultry, meat and fish can be carried to every part of the world in a fresh state. Sailors will no longer complain of 'salt horse,' and scurvy will be among the things that were. It is not very expensive, does not contain anything deleterious, and as soon as practicable will be introduced to the public."

MEMPHIS APPEAL

TUESDAY MORNING, DEC. 22, 1868

TENNESSEE PRESS ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the Tennessee Press Association is hereby called at Nashville, on the second Monday in January, 1869 at the office of the Union and American, at 12 o'clock m., upon business of importance. A full attendance is requested.

THOMAS BOYERS, President.
HUNTER NICHOLSON, Secretary.

THE SELMA RAILROAD.

We published yesterday an address from the President and Directors of the Selma Railroad to the people of Memphis, which we think exhausted the reasons that might and should urge our people to a prompt succor of that enterprise. Every fact and figure that could truthfully be mustered in the service of the road was presented in colors that, while strong and telling, were yet no more glaring than the present necessities of town and country, and the future of both, would justify.

Memphis needs and must have this railroad to Selma, by Holly Springs and Okolona. The country through which it will pass was intended by nature to be tributary to her. It is now lost. The cotton and other productions from this favored region find a market by the Mississippi Central and the Mobile and Ohio Railroads, both working against the interests of Memphis, and for their initial points—the first for New Orleans and the latter for Mobile. If this road is constructed this will be reversed. All the trade of that region will be poured into our city, enriching her in profits, probably the first year, five times more than all the outlay she is asked to make to secure so great a boon.

We hope the people of the city, the voters especially, will give the address a careful reading and the enterprise the most searching investigation. If they do so, we feel assured the subsidy ($300 000) asked for by the Company and voted by the Board of Mayor and Aldermen, will be ratified to the Company by them, and without a dissenting vote. Purely a matter affecting the business interests of the city, it should be voted upon without reference to the political opinions of any one connected with the Company. In that spirit it is presented; in that spirit the question of aid should be entertained by our citizens.

THE CONDITION OF ARKANSAS.

In another part of this issue we publish a letter from a correspondent who pictures admirably and truthfully the condition of affairs in our sister State, and the tone and temper of the Radical Legislature now in session at Little Rock. The facts, as given are fully verified by the Gazette, and other reputable and intelligent sources of information in Arkansas. They are of a character to fasten upon the minds of the doubting, a deliberate purpose by GOV. CLAYTON, aided and abetted by the blasphemous and impious BROOKS, and others of the Legislature, to continue in the counties already accursed by their presence, the militia of UPHAM and CATTERSON. Neither the claims of the general public, nor considerations affecting the future of the State, have any weight with these men, drunken with power and corroded with Radicalism. They are unmoved by all but their own demands.

The Governor, if he would, could end this crusade against the rights and liberties of the people of the State. Indeed, we are given to understand that he promised so to do more than two weeks since, pledging himself to that effect to a once prominent Radical of Memphis. His letter to the Legislature conveys a similar promise, but we have not yet heard that an order of that character has been issued. On the contrary, our private advices are that the war still continues, and that UPHAM and CATTERSON are breathing out threatenings that are often exceeded in letter and spirit by the friends they have enlisted under them as militia.

We again express the hope that the attention of the General Government will be directed this way, and that for once prompt steps will be taken to insure the people of a Southern State the decencies and immunities of a republican form of government. Memphis is particularly interested in the peace and welfare of Arkansas, and she heartily joins the down-trodden people of that State in their petition to the Federal authorities to be saved from the rapacity and ruffianism of CLAYTON'S militia.

HON. JOHN W. LEFTWICH.

A correspondent of the Brooklyn (Radical) Union, writing in regard to the proposed contest by SMITH for Dr. LEFTWICH'S seat in Congress, eulogizes the latter and scouts the idea of SMITH'S claim. He speaks of our Representative as "a Union man, long a resident of Memphis, and unflinching in his loyalty throughout the war, who had been elected to Congress as a Unionist in 1865, and had served his district well and faithfully," and of W. J. SMITH, as "a Radical candidate, selected for his supposed influence over the negroes, but without any previous experience in public affairs." He characterizes Dr. LEFTWICH as "a Conservative man of great personal popularity, as a man of integrity and of fine business ability." He says the Doctor was elected by one thousand votes over W. J. SMITH, who seeks to contest on the "ground that negro votes were thrown out in such numbers as to equal or exceed Dr. LEFTWICH'S majority, and he promises to bring evidence that at one precinct 700 negroes attempted to vote, while only eighty-six colored votes were returned. The answer on the part of Dr. LEFTWICH'S friends being that the negroes had no right to vote in that precinct; and that persisting in voting there, their votes were necessarily rejected as illegal. The negroes are certainly entitled to vote in the precincts where they reside, but they, as well as the poor whites of that region, are very easily duped, and a designing man could very readily persuade them that they had been wronged. To those who know Dr. LEFTWICH'S high character, it is simply incredible that he should have been guilty of compassing an election by fraud; and it is more in keeping with known facts elsewhere, that these simple-minded voters should have been led to believe that they had the right to vote when and where they did not possess that right, than that there have been such frauds on the part of a man of known integrity and principle. Dr. LEFLWICH'S large commercial transactions and thorough knowledge of the wants and resources of the lower Mississippi valley, make him a very valuable representative in Congress, and he ought not to be unseated unless upon clear proof of fraud invalidating his election."

We are happy to be able to announce in this connection—and we do so upon unquestioned Radical authority—that Congress has determined, notwithstanding the party pressure from without, "to leave Democrats in seats to which their right is doubtful, or made to appear doubtful, rather than be suspected of straining a point in favor of Republicans." In addition to this we learn that GOV. BROWNLOW has signified his intention of issuing a certificate to Dr. LEFTWICH. Putting this and that together we think the friends of our honored Representative-elect may rest satisfied that nothing can be done to wrest from him the seat to which he has for the second time been elected by the people of the Eighth District.

Secretary Seward replies as follows to a telegram from a New York firm making inquiry whether the United States Government will protect American vessels bound to ports in Hayti held by the rebels there from seizure or detention by the Haytian Government: "The Government of the United States will protect no United States vessel which shall attempt to carry on a trade in Haytian ports in violation of any existing blockade, or any lawful decree of the Haytian Republic, which has been duly recognized by the United States. All persons trading in the insurrectionary ports of Hayti will be liable to death, according to the process and principles of international law."

A member of Congress has received from a military officer in the South, a photograph of two members of the K. K. K. He explains that the band from which they were taken was 150 strong, and is the same that seized Huntsville, Ala., surrounded the courthouse, murdered the Judge and some others. The men captured were not more than eighteen years old.

The bill recently introduced in the Senate by Mr. Trumbull to prevent the repetition of such crimes by popular violence as that recently committed at New Albany, Ind., has, it is understood, the approval of the Secretary of State.

The Herald's Washington dispatch says there was a great bustle apparent at the State Department yesterday, notwithstanding it was the Sabbath day. The cause of the unusual stir is supposed to have been the preparation of dispatches for Minister Johnson. It is suspected by the members of Congress that the firm of Laird & Co., builders of the Alabama, are trying to claim the proceeds of the sale of the blockade runner Wren, which they are supposed to have built, and which was captured during the war and sold.

MURDER.

A Negro Hutchered by Another in Cold Blood.

The Green-eyed Monster.

Coroner's Inquest and Commital of the Murderer.

Coroner Samelson was called upon yesterday morning at half past eight o'clock, by a negro named Lewis Given, who stated that a boarder of his, another negro, named John Shaw, had been found murdered at his house that morning. Coroner Samelson immediately repaired to the scene of the murder---a small frame house in the neighborhood of the Central Point, and held an inquest on the body, at which the following facts were developed. Two witnesses were examined, the wife of Given and a negro girl who lives with her, named Mary Hays.

The four persons---the deceased Shaw, Given and his wife, and the girl---all occupied one room, Shaw's bed being divided from the main room by a board partition. They all retired as usual about eleven o'clock on Sunday night; the girl Mary locking the door on the inside. Yesterday morning Given got up first, and called Mary. As soon as she arose she went for the ax to cut some wood, and found it in its usual place, but covered with blood. On making this discovery she gave the alarm, and Given came in, took the ax from her and wiped the blade, but could not get the blood off the handle. He exclaimed that somebody had killed Shaw. On getting a light, as it was quite dark, Shaw's bed was found to be full of blood, and a trail of blood leading to the side door, as if his body had been dragged over the floor. The door was found locked on the inside, but on opening it the trail was still found, and on following it some thirty yards into the alley on the side of the house, the body of Shaw was found weltering in a pool of blood---his head chopped open in three places, and the brains and blood still oozing out. The alarm was soon given, and Given then said he must go for the Coroner.

The girl and woman further depose that for some time past Given had been jealous of Shaw, and had made threats to kill him. As late as Sunday evening he had made the threat. The doors being locked on the inside no one could have gotten in from the outside, to do the deed.

The Coroner's Jury, on examining the premises, took the same view of the case, and putting the various circumstances together, rendered a verdict "that the deceased, John Shaw, came to his death from blows of an ax, in the hands of Lewis Given."

Given was immediately arrested and carried before 'Squire Griffith, who after hearing a portion of the testimony, remanded him to jail without bail, for further examination to-morrow.

Few men had so thoroughly the esteem of all with whom they came in contact, as the deceased, and his loss will leave a void in the community not easily filled. The following gentlemen officiated as pall-bearers at the funeral: Judge Swayne, Alderman McDavitt, Mr. McCombs, Capt. Connel, Mr. Stratton and Mr. Dennison, all of whom had known the deceased intimately.

The Outrages in the Southwest Confirmed.

Citizens Fleeing the Country and Leaving Everything Behind Them.

Clayton Sends a Message to the Legislature Endorsing Catterson.

The Legislature are for a War of Extermination Against the White Race---Bloody Times Anticipated.

Special Correspondence of the Appeal.

LITTLE ROCK, ARKANSAS, }
December 17th, 1868. }

Editors Memphis Appeal:

Since my dispatches to you, affairs remain pretty much as they were. Citizens continue to flee from Augusta, some going to Little Rock, many to White county, and numbers to your city. Upham and his brigands have ceased to rob, simply because they have stolen everything that was stealable. All the stores are closed, but the people have not been molested so much in the last day or two. It is said by those lately from there, that Upham says if the people will organize home guards and keep the "outsiders," as he calls persons living in the neighboring country, from committing outrages on the loyal people, he will withdraw his forces. This, to say the least, is decidedly cool. This cut-throat robber, with a band, if possible, worse than himself, comes to a quiet, peaceable village, quarters himself upon the people, imprisons the citizens, guts the stores, drives the inhabitants away from their homes, murders, robs, plunders and outrages at will, sparing neither age nor sex, and after he has taken all that he can find, when there are no more people left to plunder, or stores to rob, when vengeance is being prepared for him, coolly proposes for the people to form a home guard for the protection of the "loyal." And who are the "loyal" that he wants protected? Men of his stripe---thieves, murderers, cut-throats, the scum of the earth! They will need protection before long if I mistake not.

The citizens with whom I talked on my trip around, say that the report made by the "Adjutant" of the Governor (of whom I spoke in the accounts I gave you the other day) is simply a lie made out of whole cloth. The militia take what they please and pay for nothing, his statement to the contrary notwithstanding. Among the last prisoners taken by these robbers is Col. Jelks, late sheriff, whom they arrested in the night and took to Augusta, taking with them every valuable in his house, even the bed clothing off his little children. There are not a half dozen young men left in the town.

A private letter received here a day or so ago from Sevier county, shows that the condition of affairs there is not a whit better than at Augusta. That worst of cutthroats, Catterson, continues to plunder, murder and burn, at his own sweet will. The militia ride up to a man's house and put the question, "Did you vote for Grant?" If the reply is "no," they either shoot the party down in his tracks, or torture him, plunder the house, take his horses and mules, shoot his dogs and other domestic animals, and generally wind up by burning the house.

In Lafayette county the citizens are leaving their homes and flying to Texas. Roving bands of militia are plundering the Littleriver country in the same way as in Sevier. Near Rondo, eight negroes who belonged to the militia went to a man's house by the name of Jones, and two of them guarded him while the others in succession ravished his wife and plundered his house.

To show you how these scoundrels and their diabolical and damnable work is looked upon by the powers that be, I make the following resume of the doings of the Legislature on Thursday last. The Governor sent in the following message:

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., Dec. 16, 1868.

Mr. Speaker:---In reply to a resolution of your honorable body "that the commander-in-chief of the State Militia is respectfully requested to report to this House the number of men, rank and file, now on duty in this State," I am instructed by his Excellency, the Governor, to say that he has just received an official report from Brig.-Gen. R. F. Catterson, commanding the District of the Southwest. The report is very encouraging, and indicates that a speedy restoration of the civil authorities in the counties under his command can be safely made. The number of men in his command is 596. He recommends that the proclamation of martial law for the county of Lafayette be very shortly revoked and the civil authority be re-established there.

In this connection I am instructed by the Governor to say that he has made an arrangement with Gen. C. H. Smith, commanding the District of Arkansas, whereby detachments of United States troops shall be placed in Lafayette and other counties, after the militia forces shall be withdrawn, and until peace and security shall be thoroughly re-established.

Signed: J. H. BARTON,
Private Secretary.

This was made the basis of a debate which was participated in by all hands, and which elicited some of the most infamous resolutions and speeches ever listened to outside of Pandemonium. A resolution approving the course of the Governor during the recess of the Legislature, and especially his late action in declaring martial law in Conway county, was passed. A man named Butler---a worthy follower of his distinguished prototype the Beast, (not the beast spoken of in the Apocalypse, but one more mean, low-lived, and devilish than old Beelzebub himself), spoke in support of the measure, and the Gazette's reporter makes the following synopsis of his remarks: "He believed," he said, "in striking boldly at the cause of these bloody assassinations, and any one who did not like it could put it into their pipes and smoke it. Some people thought these severe measures were 'raising hell without cause.' They (the authors of the outrages) 'would find hell and damnation' before they were done with it. He did not expect that every member of the body was a patriot. Jesus Christ chose twelve disciples, and one of them proved a traitor. Some people had two ears---one for friends and one for enemies---and rode two horses---one going North and one South---but they would get damnably galled before they were done. The government was ours and we were going to keep it. If a dose of salts would not remove the evil, use arsenic, which he thought a capital remedy, because it would kill. If Clayton had not done as he did, he would deserve to have been hung as high as Haman, which was twenty-five yards.

"These atrocious remarks met with general approval, at least to judge by the cheers with which it was received. The only man that made any stand against them was Mr. Nichols, a Democrat.

"But I am stringing out my letter to an unconscionable length, and will choke off. More anon. J."

DEMOCRATIC MEETING.---The citizens of the First Ward met last evening to nominate a candidate for Alderman. Jno. E. Randle was called to the chair, and the following gentleman put in nomination: T. Foley, H. E. Goodlett and J. Whitsitt; when the ballot was proceeded with and resulted as follows: Thomas Foley 60, H. E. Goodlett 4, and Whitsitt 8, whereupon Foley was declared duly elected. JNO. E. RANDLE, Pres.

AMUSEMENTS.

THEATER.---An excellent house, considering the powerful attractions elsewhere, was present at the New Memphis to witness Gaetani's great tragedy Elizabeth Queen of England, given for the first time in English in Memphis, last evening, by Mrs. Mary Gladstane. The part of "Elizabeth" is the great role of Ristori, for whom the play was written, and whom most of the audience last evening had probably seen in it. It would perhaps be unfair to institute a comparison between the "Queen of Tragedy," as Ristori is justly called, and Mrs. Gladstane, in the rendition of the character. Ristori could only play to please our eye; not one perhaps in a hundred of the vast crowds who nightly thronged the theater to hear her understood the language which she spoke, and so the sense of sight was all that was gratified. So far as understanding the meaning of her words or actions, she might as well have played pantomime. Her grand successes were, therefore, all the more wonderful, and while Mrs. Gladstane's acting is superb, there is a charm about her voice, which we would be compelled to divest her of before a fair comparison could be made.

Comparing the two, however, their effect, and tout ensemble, we must unhesitatingly give the palm to Mrs. Gladstane. Her rendition of the character was a grand performance---a masterly triumph throughout. It would take much more space than we have at our command to follow this magnificent actress throughout all the scenes of the five acts of the tragedy, and can only allude to the most prominent and overwhelming.

The masterpieces were, without doubt, in the scenes in which she dictates the two letters, one to the Earl of Leicester, and the other to Chief Justice Popham; the signing of the death warrant of Mary Stuart; the love scene with Essex, and afterwards the the signing of the death warrant of the same individual; and the closing scene.

In the first of these, where she dictates the two letters, Mrs. Gladstane appears perhaps to the best advantage, an opportunity there being offered for a display of elocution; the changes of feeling inspired by the different topics of the two letters were clearly shown by the simple modulations of her voice (which is one inexpressibly sweet, round and flexible.) The love scene with "Essex," in which for a moment the Queen was forgotten in the woman, was a glorious triumph of acting. And after the Earl had left her presence, when she gave her feelings vent---"Yes I love him; I love him as I never loved him before," the scene was overpowering, and brought forth round after round of applause.

The crowning scene of all---the last, when old age, turmoil, strife, ambition and pride had made their inroads upon her reason and strength---it was one of the grandest scenes ever expressed in mimic life. She completely realized a perfect ideal of the wasted, worn and solitary sufferer; but throughout all she was the Queen, and even to the moment her breath left her body she shone in regal splendor. Mrs. Gladstane's costuming was also remarkable, and were fac similes we are told of dresses of the great Queen. She was supported most admirably in every part, but we have not the space to make such a notice as the play as a whole deserves.

M'lle Fournour was, of course, another great attraction, and elicited the most unbounded enthusiasm in the audience. Her daring and skill have never been equalled by one of her own, and seldom by the so-called sterner sex. The play to-night will be Mary Stuart, with Mrs. Gladstane in the title role.

THE HANLONS.---Going from the New Memphis to the Greenlaw Opera House the question springs to the lips "Where do all the people come from?" Leaving a large audience at the one place, we come to the other to find, if possible, a still larger one, who were treated to an entertainment the most attractive and chaste that it has been our good fortune to witness. We should be pleased, did space permit, to make an extended notice of it. We cannot, however, omit the wonderful performance of Herr Pfau, the gymnast. It is an exhibition in which admiration for the daring and skill of the athlete, struggles with the blood chilling sensation produced by his feats. His flights from trapeze to trapeze, and the utter recklessness, apparently, of his attempts, produce a sensation of admiration not far removed from horror. To appreciate the performance, however, they must be seen. Pfau is not alone in these wondrous acts of daring and skill; the Hanlons themselves are marvels. Frederick makes a splendid exhibition with his velocipede. Miss Thorne, Sedgwick and Blamphin all contributed to the interest of the evening's entertainment. They repeat their programme this evening.

ST. PETER'S FAIR.---This charity commenced last night under most happy auspices. The beautiful weather, the theater and other places of amusement had called out from their homes large crowds, both of our citizens and strangers sojourning in town, making preparations for the holidays, numbers of whom found their way to the new Assembly Hall, No. 368 Main street, between Union and Gayoso.

The tables were most beautifully decorated, and groaned beneath the load of trinkets and wares. Of those that we noticed especially, the Sunday School table, Mrs. McMahon's table, and that of Mrs. Moriarty and Mrs. O'Neil, and Mrs. Dugan and Mrs. Devine, each had its own peculiar attraction which we will notice more in extenso to-morrow. Meanwhile, it behooves every good Catholic to bestir himself in the cause of the orphan. Rap and doing, and go to the Bazar to-night with your spare change, prepared to spend it.

THE VARIETIES.---Manager Broom presents this week a holiday bill for his great show. The entertainment consists of clog dances, ballets, singing (sentimental and comic), acrobatic feats, burlesques on all the plays and operas, etc., and in fact a complete varieties entertainment. His house is as orderly an institution of the sort as any in the country, and is managed in a style that reflects great credit on Mr. Broom. The troupe number among them some of the best ethiopian minstrels, etc., in the country, and furnish nightly a side-splitting entertainment.

THE FINEST TABLE at St. Peter's Fair, last night, was that of Mrs. Powers. It was most artistically arranged and was laden down with beautiful articles, for sale and raffle.

PRIZE BEEF.---H. Seessel, Sr., yesterday drove to our office for exhibition two of the finest beef animals that we have ever seen. One was a gigantic ox resembling the Texas breed, huge of limb and broad of horn, but loaded down with meat. The other was evidently of the Durham breed, small head, short horns and of immense rotundity. Both were decorated with ribbons, and presented a gala appearance, reminding one of the old bass-reliefs of Herculaneum and Pompeii of the sacrificial oxen. These are also to be led to the sacrifice---but not to Jupiter or any of that old crew---but to that magister artium, ingenique largitor, the great god Gaster, to whose mandates we all are most humbly subservient. They will be slaughtered on Thursday for Christmas dinners, and will be exposed for sale at the stalls Nos. 65 and 67 Poplar street market. Mr. Seessel desires us to say that although this beef is extra in every sense of the word he does not intend to charge his patrons more than the usual market rates. A more magnificent dinner could hardly be found than a roast from either one of the two beeves shown us.

THE COURTS.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT AND CIRCUIT COURTS---Hon. Connally F. Trigg, presiding.---Various cases set for trial were continued on affidavits of defendants.

In the case of Wilkins vs. J. J. Sears, a motion was made that a receiver be appointed, which was granted by the court, and J. K. Purnell was selected.

On motion of District Attorney Warren, writs venditioni exponas were ordered to be issued in cases Nos. 509, 634, 635 and 758.

In case No. 714 a motion was made by Mr. Craft for a new trial, on the ground that the verdict was contrary to the testimony, the plaintiff's counsel claiming that the judgment should have been for ten dollars an acre instead of five dollars. Mr. Clapp, counsel for the defense, contended that the judgment was excessive, as Anderson, the defendant, had been benefitted and not injured, but, under the circumstances, he had concluded to abide the judgment. His Honor, Judge Trigg, said he was bound to consider the party making the application as in earnest; thought the plaintiff would never get a jury to give him more, and that he was fully compensated, and would let the verdict stand.

The case of Richardson vs. Bishop having been set for yesterday, was then taken up. Pending the examination of witnesses the Court adjourned.

The following cases are set for to-day: Germania Life Insurance Company vs. Freierich & Rosenbach, and Hubbell vs. Chamberlain.

Guy Lseper, Esq., of Jackson, was admitted to practice in this Court.

The case of Mrs. Catherine Bailey vs. St. Louis Mutual Life Insurance Company, was decided to day. It appears from the evidence that Dr. Bailey had made application, and it was granted, for insurance, on the 17th December, 1867; that Dr. Bailey failed to pay his premiums for three quarters; that on the 7th July, 1868, Dr. Bailey was taken down with congestive fever; that the attending physicians gave up all hope of his recovery; that Mr. Winston Bailey, the Doctor's son, upon the advice of friends, procured money, called at the Company's office, paid the premiums and procured the policy; that Winston Bailey represented to the Insurance agents that his father was in his usual health at the time; that Dr. Bailey died in twelve hours after procuring the policy; that on the 9th of July, 1868, the agents informed Mrs. Bailey that the contract was null and void, on account of fraudulent representations; that they offered to pay back to her the premiums; that the company's agents, upon hearing of Dr. Bailey's death, called up their clerks and instructed them to notice particularly what had been sold by Winston Bailey, and that if Dr. Bailey died they would resist the payment of the policy. The Court charged the jury substantially, that the agent of the Insurance company could not hold to the contract if Dr. Bailey lived, and repudiate it if he died. The jury, after a short retirement, returned a verdict for the plaintiff of $6000, the full amount of the policy.

LAW COURT---H. S. Lee, Judge.---The following cases will be brought up before the Court this morning:

FINANCE AND TRADE.

OFFICE OF THE DAILY APPEAL,
MEMPHIS, December 21, 1868.

FINANCE.

Our banking houses participated largely in the general activity prevailing today. Money is easier than on Saturday and exchange is coming in heavily. The demand for exchange is also active and comes from all branches of trade. We quote as follows:

	Buying.	Selling
New York	¼ dis.	par@¼c dis.
New England	¼ dis.	" "
St. Louis	½ "	" "
Cincinnati	½ "	" "
Louisville	½ "	" "
New Orleans	$3@¼ "	1-16@$2 p'm

No 1 commercial paper is taken when offered at 9@12 per cent, but there are very few borrowers.

Small notes are more abundant than early in the week and we learn of no complaint on this head.

There is no doubt about the payment of the interest on our city bonds and as pay day approaches the demand is improving. A sale of $10,000 plain bonds were sold in New York on account of a National Bank of this city at 52¢. We heard of no local sales or in fact offerings, but quote nominally at 52@53c. The interest will be paid, we learn, at the First National Bank in this city and at the Park Bank in New York.

City Scrip is steady. Dealers offer 80c for large and small amounts. We learn that an investigation into the amount of Scrip now outstanding or uncancelled shows it to be less than $50,000. The balances against the city in the shape of ledger claims will amount to over $100,000. As the Scrip bears interest it is more desirable and is worth probably 1c more than the ledger balances. A lot of the former, however, which is held by a bank was offered at 81c, and was unsold at noon. Dealers sell at 82@83c in lots.

County Warrants are in better demand and are some higher; $8000 was sold on Saturday evening and delivered to a dealer to-day at 77c. Taxpayers buy at 78@80c.

Police Scrip is in demand and scarce at 94@95c buying. Selling at 96@97c.

Gold has varied during the week, opening in New York at 135¼, going up to 135⅝; opening this morning at 134¾ and closing at 135¼. In this market buyers maintain a shipping margin as there is no counter demand. Buying at 134@134¾.

The New Orleans Picayune says the supply of capital available for the negotiations of all A 1 paper is ample, but as most of the offerings of this description are taken by the banks, there is but little left for negotiation outside. The street rates are ten per cent. per annum to one per cent. per month for A 1 notes, secured by unquestionable collaterals, and 1½@1¾ for second grade; one per cent. per month for strictly first class business paper without collaterals; and 1½@2 for good and second class. Mortgage paper rules at 10@12 per cent. per annum for A 1, and 12@15 for second grade. The banks discount most of the approved business paper offered by their customers, and are free lenders on call or for short periods on solid collaterals. The liberal sales of cotton, sugar and molasses, and the payments by country merchants, have increased the general ease of the market.

The Chicago Times says: In the way of local finances we have nothing especially new to report. The arrivals of currency from New York were more liberal than during the day preceding, something over $500,000 having been received. The condition of the loan market, however, was not perceptibly changed. The remittances to the interior were very heavy, and the demands of borrowers very large and pressing. The loanable funds of the bank were nowhere near equal to the demands of borrowers, and accommodations were procured, therefore, with great difficulty.

The clearest heads in Wall street, and throughout the country, says the Leather Reporter, have given the most attention the past week to forecasting the probable legislation of Congress in regard to finance, taxation, and a revised tariff law. The public documents, with their weighty statistics, have been read with more or less attention. The Secretary of the Treasury, though advising a return to specie payments in two or three years in a definite mode, has proposed a plan which is not likely to be acted on. The fact is, that the "plans" are almost numberless, and the subject has been now so widely discussed, that Congress will not be able to act in a hurry, nor will it be likely to pass any particular bill as presented, although it seems the determination of the legislative body, no less than of the people, to adopt immediate steps which shall bring us gradually toward this desired end. The tariff will probably be increased, and the Secretary of the Treasury advises the re-establishment of the tax on manufactures, which was repealed last spring. Should this be done, its effect upon industry would undoubtedly be very disastrous as the revival of trade experienced after the repeal of the former law was very marked.

The rates of interest for money have been rather higher this week on "call" loans to brokers and others, and there is very little money now loaned at less than seven per cent. per annum. The winding up of the year's business, and the balancing of accounts, has created a brisk demand, which the banks, thus far, have been fully able to meet, the rate being from seven to twelve per cent., nine per cent. being about the average.

The Ledger of Philadelphia says of that market: The money market is working satisfactorily, though there are still more borrowers than lenders, and the demand would probably be greater were general business more active. There is no apparent disposition in any department of trade to operate for a future market—there is no speculation. It is this that softens the money market as to rates, compared with what they would be, if there was a disposition to buy or sell largely for the future. The banks are still sending currency South and West, and this necessarily limits their discounts. The best paper on the street cannot be placed better than 8@10 per cent., while call loans, on short time, rule at 6@7 per cent. Loans between brokers, on call, are made at about 6 per cent.

COTTON.

The Liverpool cotton market during the week has been steady, but not active. It opened firm to-day with Uplands 10½@10¾d; Orleans 10¾@11d, and closed quiet but steady. Sales 12,000 bales.

The New York market has not shown any remarkable degree of activity during the week and Middlings have ranged from 25@25½c since our last review. At the opening to-day that market was firm with a fair demand. Low Middlings 24½c; Middlings 25½c; Orleans 26c; Good Middlings 26½c. At noon there was no change. At 2 p.m. it was quiet but steady. At 3 p.m. it was quiet and weak, Uplands 25¼@25½c; and at 4 p.m. was inactive and drooping. Low Middlings 23½c; Uplands 25½c; Orleans 25½c; Good Middlings 26½c. Sales 1200 bales. It will be seen that Low Middlings are quoted 1½ under the opening quotations which is evidently a mistake.

The New Orleans market for the week has been steady, ranging from 23@23½c for Middlings. At 11:30 a.m. to-day the demand was fair and prices firm; and at 2:15 the market was active at full prices. Sales 5000 bales. Middlings 23½c.

Our market has been active throughout, and the stock has run very low. Middlings opened at 23¾@23¾c, and have steadily advanced under a demand which absorbed everything coming in as rapidly as it could be sampled until to-day; 23¾c was looked upon as the inside figure and several sales were reported at 24½. The cry from buyers is that our market is too high, but be that as it may prices have been paid readily and our market has ruled firm at better figures than in any other Southern port—fully ½@¾c over that of New Orleans. The consequence is that cotton is now coming to Memphis which formerly went elsewhere. Among the sales to day were:

Low Ordinary	20	bales at 21
Ordinary	44, 110	bales at 22½
Good Ordinary	48, 8	" " 23¾
Low Middlings	5, 21, 37, 56, 10 all shy	" " 23½
	4, 17, 9	" " 23¾
	65, 47	" " 24¾
	54, 61, 19, 9, 23, 20, 12	" " 24¾
Middlings	12, 24 shy	" " 25¼
	78	" " 25½
	35, 9, 40	" " 25¾
Strict Middlings	3, 7, 4	" " 26¼
Good Middlings	4, 5	" " 26½

Buyers were not disposed to take hold at the close. We also note a sale of 100 bales Middlings for January dealing (seller's option) at 23½. This sale was made by the seller of 300 mentioned on Saturday and at same price and terms.

The receipts this week were 9808 bales against 8779 bales last week, and 12,186 bales received for the corresponding week last year. Exports this week 10,425 bales. The stock on hand at this time last year was 14,055 bales, and Middlings were then dull at 13@13½c. The stock in Liverpool on Friday last was 354,000 bales, of which 51,000 were American. Stock afloat 255,000, of which 102,000 were American. This shows a falling off in the total stock of 11,000 bales for the week, and an increase in American of 2000 bales. The total stock afloat has increased 17,000 bales during the week, and the American stock afloat is greater by 7000 bales. Stock in New York on Saturday 30,000 bales, a decrease of 2000 bales since last week. Receipts in New York since September 1st 251,788. Receipts at all U. S. ports for the week 82 000 bales. This shows a decrease of 7000 bales for the week at all ports. Receipts at all ports since September 1st were 878,000 bales. Exports in the same time 423,598 bales. Stock at all ports 280,000 bales.

TRADE.

Business was very brisk to-day in the general markets and prices are firm. Buyers from the country are laying in their holiday stores and from the wholesale dealer in the finest wares to the retailer of chickens all seem to have as much as they can do. The contrast between the trade now doing and that of the same time last year is very great, and should strengthen our hopes in the future of the South.

The dry goods market is active and dealers are asking an advance of ¼c on some styles of staple goods. Prints are especially firm, both here and in the East, but many of our houses have anticipated this and bought heavily some weeks ago. They are thus enabled to sell at former prices. Brown and bleached shirtings, prints and brown sheetings, have all advanced within the week in the East. Our stocks are large and well assorted.

The boot and shoe market is also active, and prices are fully up to those of last week. There is a good demand for light work of men's and women's wear. In the Eastern markets, although it is now the season when a quiet trade is expected, there is more than the usual amount of business doing and goods going forward to meet the demands of the interior Southern trade and retailers of the Southwest. In New York and vicinity the manufacturers are moving cautiously in respect to making up advance stocks; prices are firm, with little or no variation from week to week, but, if anything, rather advanced rates are anticipated for spring goods, based on the present and prospective cost of all boot and shoe materials. The styles for spring will not vary essentially from those of last fall; balmorals, cut slightly lower, with some few alterations in the shape of the top, will still continue the most common style for women's and children's shoes.

The produce market is well supplied. The flatboat season is upon us and scarcely a day passes that one or more does not arrive loaded with potatoes, apples, onions, hay, corn or oats. Prices are tending downwards but are giving way slowly.

The whisky market is active and prices continue firm with a good supply on hand. The demand covers fine and common livuors with more call probably for the latter.

The tobacco inspection in Lynchburg, Virginia, from January 1st to December 1st, 1868, were 6701 hhds, averaging 700 pounds each, and 457,100 pounds loose tobacco; total pounds, 13,141,800.

Mexico buys only about $6,000,000 worth of dry goods annually.

An interesting case was decided in the Supreme Court, at Buffalo, N. Y., recently. Plaintiff sued defendants for goods sold to the latter. The defense set up nonjoinder of parties, claiming that defendant's wife should have been a defendant in the case, as she had a joint interest with her husband in the business, into which she had put her own separate property. The court decided that a man's wife could not be his partner in business, and ordered judgment for the amount sued for. The defendant's counsel intend to appeal the case, claiming that a woman has the right, under the present statute of New York, to invest her money as she pleases, and that she can become a partner in business with her husband.

RIVER MATTERS.

WEATHER AND RIVERS.

Yesterday was a counterpart of Sunday—clear and beautiful. The sky was almost cloudless, and the air was balmy almost as a May morning. The river at this point fell ten inches in the past twenty-four hours. The Arkansas is falling with four and a half feet to Little Rock. White river is at a splendid boating stage—in fact, old White has been a good girl all the season, and only for a week or two did she cause any apprehensions of low water. Hence to Cairo there is a large channel depth, but from Cairo to St. Louis five to six feet is variously claimed. The latest news from all points above, however, will be found under the telegraphic head.

MISCELLANEOUS.

We had a very large port list yesterday, and business was quite animated from one end of the levee to the other. All the packets came in with the trips of freight and people. The latter came to make their holiday purchases.

The Magenta came in from New Orleans with 165 bales of cotton, 149 hogsheads of sugar, 121 barrels of molasses and other freight.

The St. Francis came in with 441 bales of cotton and 102 cabin passengers. She came up on one wheel. Capt. Bowman detected a flaw in one of her shafts, and fearing an accident he took every precaution to prevent it.

The Natoma, from Friar's Point, had 320 bales of cotton and 120 cabin passengers. The whole of Western Africa came up on deck to lay in "truck" for Christmas.

Capt. John B. Davies, the well-known Engine builder, of Louisville, arrived in our city yesterday, on a short visit.

Mark Cheek wants to run the "Geo. W." against the Lee or any other fast boat, from here to Mound City, for any sum under $100,000.

The Mayflower goes out on Saturday next for White river. She has her internal arrangements completed for the restaurant system, and we are satisfied that the new style of living will be very acceptable to the residents along White river.

Capt. John Elliott may go North today in search of a boat to run in connection with the Des Arc in White river.

The Tennessee, Capt. Sam Archer, will not get away before noon to-day. She leaves promptly at that hour for Cairo, Evansville and Louisville. Tom Brasher has charge of her office.

The Thos. H. Allen got away for Little Rock with a good trip.

The independent Des Arc, Capt. Elliott, leaves to-day for all points on White river, connecting with the Argos for points above Augusta. Joe Elliott and Matt Gluss are her secretaries, and are clever officers.

The Mollie Hambleton is for sale. She is now in perfect order, almost as good as new.

The Lady Withaup is still at our landing.

Capt. Fleming Calvert was very much better yesterday—so much so that he was up and dressed.

We learn that the fair now in progress in our city will receive a very handsome cake from one of our local packets to-day.

The U. S. mail packet Liberty, with Capt. John Elson on the roof, leaves today at her regular hour for Augusta and way points on White river. She connects at the mouth with the Guidon for Pine Bluff; at Devall's Bluff with the Little Rock railroad; and at Augusta with the Converse, for all points above. Milt. Harry and Charley Sharpe are her popular young clerks.

The fine steamer Magenta, Capt. Frank Hicks, leaves on Wednesday for New Orleans. John Sullivan is her chief Secretary.

From the New Orleans Crescent we get the following further particulars of the loss of the Era No. 10, an account of the sinking of which we gave in our yesterday's issue: The Era No. 9, bound from the city of Shreveport, when about eleven miles from the wharfboat (or rather, when about one mile from the mouth of Red river proper) collided at 4 a.m., on the 17th inst., with the Era No. 10, bound from Shreveport to New Orleans. The collision caused the latter to sink. The facts as we have gleaned them from various sources are these: Both boats were under full headway; at the wheel of the No. 9 stood that veteran pilot, Capt. Robert Watson, and Capt. Tyler Scovell was guiding the No. 10; the proper signal was given by the ascending boat (the No. 9) and promptly answered by the descending one; but just at this moment a bank of fog intervened, and from some inexplicable cause the steamers collided, the Era No. 9 striking the No. 10 near her bow, cutting her to the water's edge, and causing her to fill and sink immediately; yet ere she sunk her pilot run her head upon the bank, thus giving all on board an opportunity to escape. The No. 9 sustained no damage further than that of knocking off her nosing. The St. Nicholas came down the river shortly after the accident occurred and succeeded in saving 269 bales cotton. She also brought to the city the officers and crew of the ill fated steamer—excepting Capt. Isaac Kouns and a few deck hands, who remained at the scene of the disaster. As the Messrs. Kouns, owners of the celebrated "Old Reliable Kouns Line," never insure their boats, and they own a number, this is a heavy loss to them. The No. 10 was entirely new, (on her fourth trip, we believe) and valued at about $20 000. She lies, or rather did when the St. Nicholas left, with the water up to her boiler deck on the larboard side, and about half way up on the starboard—with her bow down stream; and the chances are decidedly against raising her, as Red river is at present rising very fast. Occurring at the hour it did it is providential, in truth, almost a miracle, that the lives of all on board were spared. The No. 10 had on board, at the time of the collision, 886 bales of cotton and sundries, and over thirty cabin passengers. In addition to the cotton saved by the St. Nicholas, one hundred, or probably two hundred, bales more may be recovered in a badly damaged condition. That in her hold will, no doubt, share the fate of the boat. The officers and passengers of the ill-fated steamer are loud in their praise of the kind attention shown them by Capt. Dowty and his officers, who, we are sure, did everything to render them comfortable. The No 9, after rendering all the assistance possible, proceeded on her way.
